Merry Christmas

"The mistletoe hung in the castle hall,
The holly branch shone on the old oak wall."

—Thomas Haynes Bayly.

Oh, happy Christmas day—we bid thee welcome. We've been counting the days—yea, the hours and minutes—to hear thy merry bells ring out that joyful message of old—"Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men." And—at last—we've heard it. We're content. Happy. Thankful.

In every home in the land—from the humble candle lighted shack up to the marble halls of the rich man's castle—there prevails a certain spirit of kindness that only this festive occasion brings. It's that Christmas feeling of Good Will toward our fellow man. And that this is sincere is proven by the smiling countenances, the kindly words and the hearty hand-clasps which greet one on every side.

Yes, verily, all the world is looking on the brighter side of life and enjoying this "day of days."

Hence, we desire to express our feelings as well. We most heartily and sincerely wish you and everybody else in this great community

A Very Merry Christmas

And trust, that our future relations with you will be just as happy as they have been in the past.

CREED

By E. LESTER STANTON
(Second of the series of lessons on Creedalism, and the Apostle's creed —delivered Sunday evening, Dec. 9.)

There are three steps needed to clear the ground for an appreciation of the Apostle's creed. The first is an introductory consideration of the nature of reason and its relation to truth; and secondly, a knowledge of the history of our creed; and, thirdly, an independent study for ourselves, by the best means available, for understanding the historic facts and the literary expression of those facts, upon which the Apostles need was built. I will agree that such a task is not easy. But nothing easy is worth while, and while you labor with me at this problem, I will be laboring with you, so we may gain comfort in the ordeal from each other.

Not everyone has properly evaluated the various ways in which the mind works, to note the differences in method and result. One great philosopher, Kant, did recognize the value of reason, and treated them in a way which will help us to understand the use of reason.

pure of reason, and on the use of the practical reason. All thinking of the human mind does not have the same validity. It did have, no one would ever be in error. We would all be right, even though we were all different. Why is it that a child's reasoning is not as safe to follow, as a usual thing, as that of a mature person's? Because its reasoning is more nearly theoretical than that of a mature person, and less, based on fact; for the very reason that he knows fewer facts. The reasoning based on the largest grasp of the greatest number of facts will be the safest to follow. But there is a different distinction in reasoning. Two people may have the same training in logical thinking, the one may be an intellect dealing with material things, the other with spiritual things. He may be a Henry Ford, and the other a Kant. The Kantian thinking and his experience with machinery, may, in spite of the fact that his neighbors, work out, as well as himself in fact so as to be millions of people. The Kantian may be Immanuel Kant, who very often wandered off into the realm of theoretical speculation, and logically, but not based on every turn to check upon conclusions by facts. We must realize a validity to the reasonings of Henry Ford, seen in a Ford car, which we can not always recognize in the theoretical reasonings of Kant. There is a further distinction to be made between different kinds of reasonings. And again the Kantian is up in a remark made by professors in philosophy in the question of a student about a very matter, as to how we could know that a theory was right or wrong. The professor said, "There is only one difference between a good theory and a poor theory. The poor theory will not work." And this is as true in the realm of pure reason, as in the realm which we may call practical reason, because it deals more closely with material facts. If a theory, or a religious faith, which is nothing more or less than a theory (a theory in the realm of religion) happens to be wrong, history, or experience, will prove it to be wrong, by its fruits. Either it will be found to be positively harmful, and will then be discarded, or it will be found negatively sterile and useless and, practically, even though, in theory, it may still be held. Such may be the fate of a tenet of a creed. We may repeat it over and over, as a part of what we think we believe, but in practice we will ignore it. Those who believe in the literal inspiration of the bible, and that all parts of it are of equal benefit, though they state such a theory actually, are their own higher critics, choosing those parts of the Bible which are of the highest blessing for spiritual nurture in a way which practically invalidate their theory. If you could get them to see their inconsistency, they would revise their theory, in the light of the very evident facts. The reason why we have to point out this situation in the theory of the human mind is that otherwise, we will seem to say at one time that the human mind is fallible, and can not be trusted, and at another time we will have to say that unless it is possible for the human mind to lead us to knowledge, there is no use to try to think. But we must think. To doubt our right to think, would lead to nothing but despair. We must think. Now the practical question is, How can I be sure that I am right? And the first answer is, that you can not be sure that you are right just because you did the best you could thinking. It is not only possible to be scientific in thinking; there is no thinking that is not scientific thinking. And you will remember that we mean by scientific thinking that kind of thinking which can be tested by experience and which is based upon experience. That is why practical reason is more safe to follow than theoretical reason.

I know that it has been contended that faith is not in that category of ideas which can be tested by experience. There have been a lot of people who contended that only material things can be tested and only ideas about which we can have sensuous knowledge belong to scientific thought. That would make faith an extra-scientific field of thought—that would make religious ideas of no worth. And such a thing is preposterous. I want to be more scientific than such small calibre folks, who have limited the scope of experience by their arbitrary, and unreal distinctions. If we can get this idea, even if it is difficult, it will not necessarily strengthen our faith, but it will give us a great confidence in the presence of any scholars we may meet, because on demand we would be able as Paul urged Timothy to be, "to give to every man who asketh, a reason for the faith which is in us. In other words, we can show folks how reasonable is our faith. The idea is this: Religious faith is proved to be real by experience—and history is one long proof of such a reality. The scientist asks us to hold nothing which can not be proved valid by experience and we will show him that we can be as scientific as he. I say that we have the proof. Through the ages the children of men have had certain faiths which held them to this earth, but in a firm belief that after this earthly existence there was a future life—the continuation of this. This is a sample of the kind of a belief, which I say has the proof of history. It has not only persisted in some form among every people, it had further proved its right to be called a fact in that it has been spiritually fruitful in human life. It has added to life a new reality, and great worth. It has made our loved ones dearer to us. It has given us power to live better and to feel more deeply, and to love more grandly. Study the lives of those to whom the thought of an eternal life has been a reality in the influence of those of faith can be stretched. These men have made life for all of us mean infinitely more than as though they had never lived and believed, and this is a valid proof of the reality of their faith; and that the reality of their faith with the universality of such a faith, and its universal fruits points to a universal human need as wide as the earth, and in turn, such universal needs are proof of the reality back of the needs, and the fruits and the faiths which even the scientist will admit as soon as you point out the facts. For even in an impersonal world—the phenomena of a universal human need would prove such a reality back of the need. And those who have found the law of conservation to hold in every natural realm would believe that the spirit of man must be perpetuated hereafter, and that in the beyond there would be the answer to the question of faith here.

Let us look at two more examples of a practical testing of faith or of religion. First let us look at the life of a man who professes belief in a God, and who has a certain belief in a certain kind of a God. This belief satisfies him, and he thinks that his idea is final. It may be final for him, and satisfy his needs. But his children never see his ideas—they never feel his adoration for his God. They go away from his God unsatisfied. Their experience may mean that his belief in some particulars is not universally valid, and it may be that those points in which it is unreal, may be the very points which drive his children to turn down his whole body of conceptions about God. We are seeing such a proof in our times of the unsatisfying nature of some points of our faith. And it seems to me that if we are brave enough to face this fact, we shall be willing to go carefully over the whole body of our Christian faith to see whether, in the light of history we may not have some elements which are not a true part of the faith which was Jesus'.

The other illustration of a scientific test for the validity of one's faith in this: A certain man says that he has the true faith in Jesus, and in God. He makes every profession of adherence to this faith. But we who have seen that the central point to Jesus' religious life was service to others, and the bringing of happiness to others, see that this man is selfish to his family, and his neighbors—that he will not accommodate folks and that his own family are not happier but sadder when he comes home at night. I say that here is a scientific proof that something is wrong with this man's faith. His religion ought to make others happier, but it does not. In other words, when a man says in prayer meeting, for instance, that he is happier since he found a faith in Jesus, we have a right to ask his wife if she is happier, too. And if she is, we have a scientific proof that his religion is valid—that it is real—with a universal reality, i. e. that it has a basis in fact—that it actually bears fruit.

Another preliminary consideration to take up before coming to our study of religion, and our faith, is the distinction between the eternal elements of faith and the temporary expressions of that faith, for instance, when a primitive man, who thought that every moving thing was possessed by a spirit, came to an extra large tree, and there bowed down and worshipped, it is easy for us to distinguish between the eternal hunger in his life for companionship with the Almighty, and his particular way of expressing that hunger or instinct because of his incomplete knowledge of life. When the Hebrews thought of God as more to be found in one place than another, we know that that is but a temporary way of expressing their faith, which has a universal reality. And when they thought that in order to enter into social relations with God they had to offer Him a sacrifice of an animal or bird or from their crops, we can separate their eternally real faith, and this temporary expression of that faith. We must see this distinction between religion and its passing expressions or we shall never be able to understand and evaluate any religion. And it is always more difficult to analyze one's own religion, because of the prejudices we bear toward it, because of which we are not always ready to change our minds.

We need this understanding of the nature of reason, for the task which is before us of studying our own faith, and the form in which it has come down to us out of the past, in order that we may be prepared to see the difference between those elements which are fundamental, and those expressions which are of but fleeting significance. But of this we can be sure, there will never be found reasonable means for justifying skepticism, in face of the fruits which history shows us of the life-transforming power of faith in the actuality of companionship with the eternal, which is written large in the story of every people, of every age. Jesus said, "By their fruits shall ye know them," and by their fruits we shall know what is eternally valid in our faith.

Mrs. W. Mau Passes Away at Channel Lake

A Resident of This Vicinity for Thirty-three Years

Monday morning, Dec. 17, Mrs. Wilhelmine Mau passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Paasch, at Channel Lake. Mrs. Wilhelmine Mau (nee Newbert) was born on May 13, 1848, in Deschdel, Germany, and was married to William Mau in 1866, and came to America in 1889. When they first came to this country they lived for three years at Bassett Station, Wis., and in 1891 they settled at Channel Lake, where she has lived until the time of her death. To this union was born sixteen children, seven of whom are still living to mourn the loss of a loving mother. They are Mrs. Fred Paasch of Channel Lake; Mrs. Tillie Gutsch of California; Mrs. Ida Johnson of Minnesota; Mrs. C. W. King of Chicago; William, Harry and Fred Mau of Antioch, also fifteen grandchildren and one great grandchild, besides a number of other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were held at the home of Fred Paasch on Thursday afternoon at 1:15 and at the Wilmet church at 2:00 o'clock, with burial in the Wilmet cemetery.

On Wednesday, Dec. 12, occurred the death of James Walker Johnson at the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan, where he had gone a short time ago in hopes of benefitting his health.

Mr. Johnson was born on Oct. 14, 1874, at Thornton, Ill., but has spent the greater part of his life in the vicinity of Antioch, having come here with his parents when he was two years of age, and located on a farm east of Antioch, where he lived until the time of his death.

He is survived by one sister, Nellie N. Johnson of Antioch, and one brother, George T. Johnson of Kenosha, besides a large number of relatives and friends.

The funeral services were held at the home on Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. S. E. Pollock, with burial in the Hickory cemetery.

Grade School News Notes

ROBERTA LEWIS, Editor
Mrs. Garland, Mrs. Lux, Miss Tibbitts and Miss Ebling took part in a play at the high school given by the Woman's Club.

We are all looking forward to the Christmas vacation.

The eighth graders are having a hard time with ratio.

Some of the girls in Mr. McTaggart's room are planning to give a little play this Friday before school closes for the Christmas vacation.

The seventh and eighth graders drew names last Friday so that each child will get a gift.

The seventh and eighth grades are enjoying a story from the Youth's Companion, entitled "The Edge of Raven Pool."

The eighth grade received a letter from Ray Bottoms, an eighth grader of Mt. Calm, Texas, describing the state. Edna Verrier was chosen to answer the letter for the eighth grade.

Many of the children have received letters from Martha Westlake, who is spending the winter in Florida.

STORES OPEN EVENINGS

All the business houses in Antioch are open evenings to take care of the late Christmas shoppers. They will remain open each evening until including Monday, December 24th. The stores will be closed all day Christmas.

An Ideal Gift—

If you are in doubt as to what to give your friend or relative, who lives in Antioch or vicinity, or who has been a resident, but now residing in another city—what could be nicer than to make them a present of The Antioch News for a year. A present that would last and be appreciated by the recipient—and the cost of $1.50, would be an economical gift.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, Dec. 17, 1903
Frank Pitman, Jr., was a Chicago visitor Tuesday.

Chase Webb was a Chicago passenger Tuesday morning.

Eugene Savage of Channel Lake visited friends and relatives in Chicago last week.

Miss Ada Butrick visited at Channel Lake a few days last week the guest of her friend, Mrs. Eugene Savage.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Savage returned from their wedding tour last Saturday, and are now at home to their many friends in Antioch.

An egg famine threatens Chicago and prices have jumped to thirty-one cents. Owing to the unusual cold December the hens have evidently gone on a strike.

Men and teams are at work cleaning up the debris and excavating for the new Sibley building to be erected on the site of the building recently destroyed by fire.

Walter Stickels has leased the Wm. Burke house and will move to this place in February.

Mr. A. G. Watson and family attended the golden wedding anniversary of his parents at Templeton, Wis., this week.

From 18 to 20 degrees below zero was reported Sunday morning. Late risers perhaps did not find the mercury so low, but all agree, however, that it was cold enough.

The announcement has just been made public that H. D. Hughes and Miss Hattie F. Ames of this city were married Dec. 1, 1903. The News joins with a large circle of friends in wishing them a life of contentment and happiness.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

SILVER MEDAL FOR LAKE COUNTY JERSEY

Majesty's May Thornbury 448570 started test at 3 years 1 month and in 365 days produced 9,987 lbs., milk, 476.66 lbs., butter fat. Entering class AAA of the Register of Merit, she becomes a Silver Medal Jersey in the state of Illinois. She was milked three times a day and carried a calf 216 days. Gauntlet's Oxford Togo 148097 sired the above cow, and her dam is Oxford Majesty's May 312975. This Silver Medal cow is owned by W. A. Brewster, Libertyville, Ill., Lake County.

Testers for Associations Needed

In a letter just received from the University of Illinois, C. S. Rhode, professor of dairying, asks whether there are any young men near Antioch who would like to get into cow testing association work. There is a great demand for testers at present and that demand will continue up to the first of March. Many farmers, especially in the northern part of the state, are organizing testing associations.

Young men who have had a course in agriculture in the high school are preferred for the positions. However, others who are familiar with dairying will be given consideration. They can be given brief instruction at the college for a few days.

Anyone near Antioch wishing to get into the work may see C. L. Kutil at the high school. Arrangements can be made with him for a few days' instruction at the Antioch high school. This is a wonderful opportunity for some young men. A year's experience in cow testing work will mean much to any dairyman in the future. The salary is encouraging.

Farm Is Best Investment in America Today

J. H. Howard, president National Transportation Institute, Chicago, spoke before a gathering of four hundred farmers and business men at the Farm-Business conference in Englewood hall of the Milwaukee auditorium. The conference was held in conjunction with the Wisconsin Products exposition.

Mr. Howard spoke of the interdependence of agriculture and commerce, emphasizing the fact that farmers cannot prosper unless factories give work to men who buy the products of the farms, and factories cannot exist without the farmers who buy their machinery and other products.

AUCTION SALE ON SATURDAY

DEC. 22, ON JOHNSON FARM
There will be an auction sale on the farm located 2 miles northeast of Antioch on the Pikeville road, on Saturday, December 22. Fourteen head of livestock will be offered for sale, together with a quantity of farm machinery and hay and grain. The property is owned by Miss Nellie Johnson. L. H. Freeman will be the auctioneer, and the selling will start at 12:30 sharp.

It was past by the post that hereafter upon the death of any war veteran of any war or near relative of same who receive a wreath of flowers.

High School Notes

Last Saturday night the cast of "The Charm School," including the noted Dobbin, himself, and also the orchestra, journeyed to Gurnee, where the play was again given. Many said that it was even better than it was when it was presented in Antioch. Everyone enjoyed it, and although it wasn't a great financial success, it showed others the type of entertainment which A. T. H. S. gives. The performance at Gurnee gave the cast and others connected with the entertainment more confidence in themselves, so that in the future, the high school entertainments will be just as good, or even better, than ever.

On Wednesday afternoon the two elementary dramatic classes combined and gave a Christmas program at the 6th hour. A short play, written by Georgia Bacon, was part of the program. Members of the dramatic club and of the advanced elocution class were guests.

The clothing girls are working on a Santa Claus suit (wonder who it is for?).

On Friday of last week the high school pupils drew numbers and ate to buy a present for that number. The faculty also drew numbers for gifts. The school children paid five cents each for the purchase of a Christmas tree and the school intends to spend Friday afternoon enjoying it at the annual Christmas party.

Since his training at Gurnee last Saturday night, Mr. Bright has been beseeched by the senior girls to open a beauty parlor. They sure looked wicked that night(?)

School will close Friday for a two week's vacation. The teachers will go to their various homes to spend the holidays.

The freshman English classes have just finished a group of demonstration talks, which were very interesting. Candy and cake-making demonstrations proved very popular—especially when the products were passed around. Many different types of things were demonstrated, such as knitting, bead bags, repairing auto tires, testing acidity of soil, and making Christmas boxes.

The basketball boys played a game with Waukegan last Wednesday, which they lost; but on Friday night of this week they play Waukegan and have hopes of having better results.

The Christmas party on Friday afternoon will be a truly cooperative party. The tree will be purchased by the whole school; the agriculture boys will get it; the farm mechanic boys will put it up; the bookbinding class will trim it; the art metal class will decorate the hall; the athletic association will take charge of the decorations; the dramatic club will furnish Hold Community Tree Service Christmas Eve.

Boy Scouts to Be in Charge; All Urged to Join in Carol Singing

Under the direction of the Woman's Club the community Christmas tree will be erected at the heart of the downtown. The Boy Scouts, themselves friends of the tree, will take charge of the tree, and also take part in the musical program given Christmas eve by the city singers gathered around. An efficient committee, under the direction of Mrs. Charles Lur, have charge of the wiring and lighting.

A short program of music, singing of carols, songs and the Boy band will be given at 9 p. m. All who can sing, who have the Christmas spirit and peace, "good will to men" invited to gather around the tree at the band begins to play. Take your part in the Christmas service, symbolizing the birth of One who came that we might have a "more abundant life," and in whose name we are all children of the same great Father.

Because of the Christmas program being held in the churches for children, it was deemed necessary the community services be held at 9 o'clock. Come not later than 8:30 and let this be a real expression of the Christmas spirit.

The community Christmas tree will stand during the night, bearing all its gifts, and, good night, good.

IAS SPIRIT DISPLAYED

Antioch has taken on a Christmas appearance this year. The town has all very appropriate decorations and lights. There is an unusual display of Christmas gifts every where. It does not have to be a trip to the "big town" for gifts. And it is remarkable one can do right here in town in regard to price, really much cheaper than can be found in the larger cities.

At present the Christmas rush has not shown up in full and it is expected that this will be another last minute Christmas, with everyone trying to get their gifts a day or two before Christmas. The stores in Antioch will remain open every night until Christmas, so if you are one of the last minutes it will be well to take advantage of this the latter part of this week, insuring plenty of time to look over the splendid line of Christmas offerings to be found in Antioch.

Purchasers of gifts should remember that a gift should be a gift, and not a purchase. It is a better gift if it is something that is useful, and the quality every bit as good. Make "Buy in Antioch" your slogan for the balance of the Christmas shopping—you will save time, worry and money and if it is not right you home town merchant will make it right—Wishing you and yours a very Merry Christmas—The Editor.

NO RURAL DELIVERIES ON CHRISTMAS DAY

There will be no rural deliveries on Christmas day, according to the U. S. Postal authorities.

the entertainment, and the faculty will serve the eats. Who will be Santa?

On Tuesday evening the following people were initiated in the dramatic club: Leslie Palmer, Lester Nelson, Gladys Barthel, Russel Keulman, Ward Abt and Elma Cannon. The candidates had to successfully pass the art of stage balance, vocalization exercises, facial expression, mental torture on the stage, and if they did not satisfactorily pass these tests they were hung—of course it was necessary to hang them all.

Much credit for the success of "The Charm School" is owed to Miss Olson, Mr. Pollock, Mr. Rosing and also to Gideon Thayer, who furnished an unusual element of the show by furnishing Dobbin.

Trevor Happenings

The Jolly Juniors were entertained at Social Center hall Tuesday evening by Herold Mickle and Henry Schumaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fenner and daughter Ruberta of Kallispell, Mont., visited at their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yaw, and called on their many friends in and about Trevor. Mr. and Mrs. Fenner owned the Mrs. John Holcher place before going to Kallispell, 19 years ago.

Lion of Lucerne.

The Lion of Lucerne is a famous piece of sculpture at Lucerne, Switzerland, hewn out of the sandstone rock in the side of the cliff. It represents a colossal lion, transfixed with a spear and dying, but still endeavoring to protect with its paw the Bourbon fleur-de-lis. This monument was designed by Thorwaldsen and was dedicated in 1821 to the officers and soldiers of the ill-fated Swiss Guard nearly 800 in number—who were slain

August 10, 1792, while defending the palace of the Tuilleries from the attack of the mob.

Making Motorists Think

Autolists summoned before Judge Meredith Yeatman in the Cincinnati, O., municipal court, must get pretty uneasy under the collar when their eyes glimpse a certain wall decoration immediately behind and above "his honor's" chair. There, in big bold letters and an illustration of a skeletonized death, appears a sign of warning to law-breaking motorists. It's one they can't soon forget. Above is a reproduction showing Judge Yeatman in the chair, calling attention to the sign. Note the simplicity with which it is worded, yet there can be no doubt as to its meaning. The numerals in the center—"Deaths—102—To Date"—are changed almost every day—every time another fatality occurs. And, it is reported, the psychological effect of this sign on speeders is having a helpful effect. A good idea for speeders' courts in other cities to follow.

MAN, 96, BOASTS OF 151 LIVING DESCENDANTS

Perry Soles Cobb of Lysander, Onondaga county, New York, has just celebrated his 96th birthday at his home at Adams. He has 151 descendants. Mr. Cobb, the oldest Civil War veteran living in Jefferson county, boasts of eleven children, sixty-three grandchildren, seventy-one great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

Mr. Cobb is the father of Charles Cobb of Antioch and will be remembered by many here as he has made several visits to his son's home here.

Highest Bridge in U. S.

It is claimed that the suspension bridge over the Snake river, near Twin falls, in southern Idaho, is the highest in this country, if not in the world. The actual measurement is 345 feet from the floor of the bridge to the stream, and the length of the span is 688 feet. Aside from its extreme height, the bridge is of interest because, although materials had to be hauled a great distance, the structure was completed in four months.

American Plant in England.

Introduced by accident in 1870 into the Bay of Southampton, at Hythe, an American plant, called the Spartina Townsendi, has spread rapidly along the English coast, flourishing vigorously in spite of the fact that it is under water part of the time. The plant is an excellent fodder for cattle and may possibly be used for paper pulp. It may be introduced to the French coast to bind the shifting sands.

Scots Fought Potatoes.

When the potato was first introduced into Scotland it met with much opposition. Sermons were preached against it, in which it was declared in the Bible, it must be unfit for Christians to eat. It was even described by one divine as being the forbidden fruit which had caused the fall of Adam.

WHAT SORT OF SNOW REMOVAL ON ROADS?

Importance of Work to Highway Investment

A good road may be badly injured by improper snow removal. As yet, clearing a highway of snow is "anybody's job" in most localities; if the State or county doesn't do it, the transportation company will. Indeed, many automobile trucking concerns in the Middle West and North have more adequate snow removal apparatus than the States, the roads of which they use.

But the private concern, in removing snow from a highway, naturally considers only its immediate benefit, and spends no more money on the task than necessarily requires.

Snow removed from the complete width of the highway, down to the surface, permits the road to freeze, but it freezes all over, and in the spring, thaws all over. Snow removed from the center of a highway sends a strip for freezing, leaving the sides of the road protected from snow. When the thaw comes the snow disappears, the sides left soft and the center hard; ruts and broken crown.

Snow which is removed but partially results in ruts in the covering of snow, which all wheeled vehicles follow. There is no more destruction to be given any highway than a concentration of all loads on the same spot. The result is a pushing aside of foundation stones, and a rutty condition which is extremely destructive of the road.

County, State and municipal authorities can well afford to make regulations regarding snow removal, which will protect the highways which cost so much. An investment of five, ten, twenty, thirty thousand dollars a mile should not be imperilled because of unwillingness to spend a few dollars per mile during winter for proper and adequate snow removal.

Work and no worry—there you have the receipt for attaining ripe old age, in the estimation of Daniel Driscoll of Sawtelle, California. He ought to know. Mr. Driscoll who is pictured above, has just passed the 105th milestone of his career.

And he is just as spry and active as a man of thirty. If you saw him going through his daily routine of work in his garden, it is said, you'd never think the man was a centenarian. Quite interesting, we'd say.

Indirect Lighting.

What is believed to be the earliest recorded example of indirect lighting is credited to Queen Victoria, when in 1890 at her suggestion, the Durbar room at Osborne was illuminated entirely by "deflected" light, not a lamp or fixture or any source of light being noticeable.

It is curious how many hold that inincerity is the most unforgivable sin. Their denunciation never lets up

The Right Spirit.
When I am in the dentist's chair I do not raise a fuss, but thank my lucky stars I'm not a hipopotamus. When baggage men destroy my trunk I do not rave and rant, but mentally declare I'm glad I'm not an elephant. And wearing new shoes, stiff and tight, which painfully impede, I smile and think how nice it is I'm not a cent, etc.—Boston Transcript.

Sawdust and Ashes.

The latest substitute for cardboard and wood in the making of boxes is a chemical composition of sawdust and ashes. The finished boxes are light, washable, sanitary and nonpoisonous. They are waterproof and as fireproof as asbestos, and can be made in any degree of flexibility or texture, either as hard as oak, tough as metal or as pliable as cardboard.

Japanese Lawmakers.

The Japanese parliament is modeled after that of Great Britain, but its spirit is entirely different. In Japan debates in parliament are pleasant occasions where men of second rank are permitted to display themselves. The leader of a party may not even have a seat in the chamber.

Real Serenity.

Real serenity of life is reached when one does not care because he was not invited to the picnic.

Horse Latitude.

Horse latitude is the name given to the belts of calms in the North Atlantic ocean between the region of westerly winds of the higher latitudes and the region of trade winds of the torrid zone. The origin of the name is not certainly known. Some authorities believe that it was derived from the fact that vessels with cargoes of horses were often so delayed because of the calms that the animals perished from lack of water.

Instinct and Intuition.

Instinct is the term applied to an inherited tendency to perform a specific action in a particular way whenever a situation arises. Intuition, on the other hand, implies the faculty of knowing something beforehand, whether it be mystical, intellectual or moral.

San Francisco Vigilantes.

The Vigilantes were a volunteer committee of citizens who organized in San Francisco in 1851 to combat undesirable conditions which existed in California following the gold rush of 1849. They dealt out summary justice until conditions became stable.

Ambergris.

Ambergris is a fatty secret formed in some sperm whales, taken from whales, but it is often found floating in the water, especially in the waters of the tropics. It is also found cast up on beaches. Lumps which sometimes exceed pounds in weight. On exposure to air it develops a sweet, musky odor. Ambergris has a high medicinal value as a material in the manufacture of perfumes. Its price is increasing, due to the scarcity of the sperm whale and the demand for the material.

Centenarian

Work and no worry—there you have the recipe for attaining ripe old age, in the estimation of Daniel Driscoll of Sawtelle, Cal. He ought to know. Mr. Driscoll who is pictured above, has just passed the 105th milestone of his career.

And he is just as spry and active as a man of thirty. If you saw him going through his daily routine of work in his garden, it is said, you'd never think the man was a centenarian. Quite interesting, we'll say.

That it pays to steam-sterilize milk cans has been shown conclusively by tests made by the United States department of agriculture. Unsteamed cans having a bacterial count of 154,000,000 contained 18,000,000,000 at the end of 24 hours, while steamed cans having a count of 3,400 immediately after steaming and left practically dry had 7,900 in the same time. The bacteria count on steamed cans left damp for 48 hours increased from 4,400 to nearly 6,000,000.

WISCONSIN IS VISITED BY MANY TOURISTS

Visitors in Summer Travel 432,000,000 Miles on Wisconsin Roads

Approximately 2,500,000 out of state tourists visit Wisconsin annually and travel 432,000,000 miles while in the state, according to results of the count made by the state highway department during one day a week for seven weeks, made public today.

The summary shows that the average number of persons per car was 3.66; the average stay within the state was 10.8 days; the average miles traveled was 618; the average amount expended per car was $125.50, or $11.72 per day, which resulted in an average daily expenditure of 3.21 per person. Thirty-six per cent of the tourists camped at parks or by the roadside, the summary shows, four per cent stopped at summer homes, 60 per cent stopped at hotels.

The count showed that the average number entering the state and leaving during the period for which the count was taken was approximately the same, or 7,000 cars daily each way, the review states. "The tabulation the occupants of each car expended $11.72 per day. Multiplying the 7,560,000 car days by $11.72, the amount expended per day, gives us a total expenditure of $88,562,400 for the total tourist season."

Considering the number of persons entering the state on highways at twice that those checked in the count, it is estimated that the amount left in Wisconsin during the season by out of state people is $164,000,000. Considering the state tourist traffic, it is estimated that $3,000,000 annually is spent by tourists.

SUBSTITUTE RATION DEVISED FOR CALVES OF DAIRY HERDS

In dairy herds whose entire output is sold as whole milk at high prices, there is need for a means of raising the calves on other feeds. A number of substitute rations have been worked at various experiment stations which have proved fairly satisfactory. On the experimental farm of the United States department of agriculture, at Beltsville, Md., a mixture has been devised as the result of experience, which is suggested for use in raising calves where the whole milk is more profitably disposed of through other sources.

The department's recommended ration is as follows: Take 50 parts finely ground corn, 15 parts linseed oil meal, 15 parts finely ground rolled oats, 10 parts dried blood flour, 10 parts skim-milk powder, one-half part salt. Stir up with warm water at the rate of 1 pound of the meal mixture to about 6 pounds of water. Increase gradually as the whole milk is decreased, until at the time the calf is 50 days old it should be getting only the gruel. At this time 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the meal mixed with water will constitute a day's feed. The total quantity of milk used is about 300 pounds; if less is fed the calves are likely to be unthrifty.

The time at which calves can be put on milk substitutes alone, says department dairymen, depends upon the same factors as in the use of separated milk, namely, the breed, development, and vigor of the calves, etc. It is hardly safe, as a rule, even with the most vigorous ones, to attempt to put them on milk substitutes alone within one month after birth; and with calves below normal in vigor some milk for two months or more may be necessary to raise them.

The department suggests, as a guide for feeding the above substitute to large vigorous calves, the following schedule: First 10 days, 10 pounds of whole milk daily; second 10 days, 8 pounds of milk and 0.4 pound of meal (mixed up in 6 times its weight of warm water); third 10 days, 6 pounds milk and 0.8 pound meal; fourth 10 days, 4 pounds milk and 1.2 pounds meal; after 50 days, 2 pounds meal and no milk. Smaller and less vigorous calves should be fed somewhat less, and the milk feeding should be continued a little longer. In any event, a total of 300 pounds of milk should be sufficient. Grain and roughage should be fed with milk substitutes the same as with separated milk.

Whole milk is the best food for a calf; skim milk ranks second. Calves fed the substitute as stated above have been subject to no more digestive troubles than the skim milk fed calves and the gains in weight have not been materially less.

To prevent the spread of livestock diseases from one part of the country to another the United States department of agriculture maintains thru inspection at all important market centers. Last year the inspectors for the government inspected nearly 21,000,000 cattle, practically 20,000,000 sheep, and more than 45,000,000 hogs. To comply with regulations so that they might continue in interstate commerce 12,775 cattle and more than 1,000,000 sheep were dipped. More than 458,000 hogs were immunized against hog cholera under department supervision for distribution as feeding and breeding animals.

The economic importance of tuberculosis in the dairy industry is shown by figures on the length of time cows remain in the milking herd. The figures, prepared by the United States department of agriculture, show that the average cow remains in the milking herd 4.2 years. However, when the cows removed on account of tuberculosis are not considered it is found that the turnover is not nearly so great, the useful life of the average cow being 5.7 years. The eradication of the great cattle plague will cut down the costs of production of dairy products.

In some cases, according to investigations of the United States department of agriculture, heavier grazing produces better results than lighter grazing of pastures. At McNeill, Miss., where the department maintains an experiment station, records were kept of the gains made by native cattle grazed on pastures burned over each winter. When they were allowed 10 acres per head they made good gains until about the middle of June and then barely maintained their weight until frost. When heavier grazing was practiced the same rate of gain was maintained for a longer time because the maturing of the grasses was retarded.

Sorry for Jeremiah.

A clergyman wrote a comment on the "Lamentations of Jeremiah" and sent it to a bishop for his judgment upon it. The bishop, after he had read it, sent it back with this note: "There is but one thing I regret about this work—namely, that Jeremiah is not living now to compose a fresh book of lamentations on your commentary."—Boston Transcript.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON II

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

J. H. Puelicher

Why does Government charter banks, simply to make money for stockholders, or because banks are needed by the public? What is a bank? Text books say, "A bank is a quasi-public corporation, chartered by State or Nation, to receive deposits and make loans."

STOCKHOLDERS = owners.

QUASI-PUBLIC = semi-public, that is, owned by private stockholders, but regulated by government to see that the depositors' money is safely loaned.

STATE BANK CHARTER = privilege, grant or right to do a banking business under supervision of the State Banking Commissioner.

NATIONAL BANK CHARTER = grant to do business under supervision of the Federal Comptroller of the Currency.

SUPERVISION = the sending by government of examiners, at least once a year, into a bank without notice, to count its cash, examine its loans, bonds and mortgages, and see if its books are correct.

Banks can do only those things permitted in their charters. No business is more closely watched and regulated by State or Nation. Banks cannot, therefore, be run simply to make money for stockholders, but are chartered to meet the needs of the people and are held to that purpose by government supervision.

Merely a Stone.

The supposed skull of the Tertiary period found in Patagonia some time ago is merely a curiously shaped stone and of no scientific value, according to a committee of eminent scientists of the Buenos Aires and Lapata museums of natural history, which has carefully examined it. At the time of its discovery great interest was excited because it was supposed to be the oldest trace of mankind in existence.

"The Rosary" Popular.

Eighty thousand copies of the song, "The Rosary," were sold in 1913, the year of its publication, and many thousands of copies have been sold each year since then. It has been translated into most languages, including Esperanto.

REALITIES--AND THE ALLIED DEBT PROBLEM

By WALTER W. HEAD,
President, American Bankers Association.

As a business proposition there is just one reason for considering a recasting of the balances due the United States from foreign governments. That is the possibility that such action would aid in re-establishing a foreign market which will absorb our surplus products.

Walter W. Head

It is possible, of course, for the United States to isolate itself. We can produce everything necessary to sustain life. More existence, however, is not the purpose of life. We cannot prosper as we have unless we dispose of the surplus products which naturally accumulate, both agricultural and industrial. We must either sell this surplus abroad or curtail our production and generally lower our standard of living.

Our foreign trade depends upon the purchasing power of foreign countries. Europe's inability to buy has impaired our ability to sell. We have an interest in Europe's prosperity. To protect that interest we must be concerned in the restoration of our debtors' capacity to trade with us and to meet their obligations. We should deal with this subject exactly as a banker deals with a loan of doubtful value.

Get the Facts

The United States should have a representative with official standing in the Reparations Commission. We should not necessarily be bound by any agreement which may be proposed, but our representative should gather all information available. The United States Government, of its own motion and based on its own information, should then decide whether it should consider the readjustment of its accounts with Europe, and, if so, in what manner. Our own Debt Funding Commission should recommend to Congress whatever readjustment, if any, of the Inter-Allied Debt may be warranted.

THESE SUGGESTIONS ARE PURELY FOR FACT-FINDING AND ADVISORY PURPOSES—FOR GETTING DOWN TO THE REALITIES OF THE CASE. Precisely what our action should be, to serve the common interest, will be determined by information which at this time is not available. Our first step is to secure the information and our duty is to follow developments intelligently.

THE FRIEND IN NEED

(From the Nation's Business)

Some there are who still think the banker wears horns. Who is the hardboiled citizen, the man behind the thumb-screw? The banker, they will tell you. In the light of this illusion, consider a brief excerpt from the resolutions adopted at the recent Atlantic City convention of the American Bankers Association.

"The conclusion is inevitably forced on the impartial observer that the primary need of the world is moral and spiritual regeneration as the essential basis for economic recovery. Until the nations of the world are willing to liquidate their debts they can make little progress toward liquidating their debts."

Hard-boiled? Not that! It harks back to Socrates. "The true politics," he said, "is first of all a politics of the soul."

Come to think of it, when we want someone to take care of our funds, to whom do we turn? To the banker. When we are in a tight place and need funds, to whom do we turn? To the banker. When there's a civic enterprise afoot, whose time and money do we commandeer first? The banker's.

Angler Fish "Flage" Victim.
More strange forms are exhibited by the angler fishes than by any other fish family. Living at the bottom of the sea and seeking their prey by stealth, angler fishes do not need powerful swimming muscles, and as a consequence the size of the body and tail has become considerably reduced, so that the head, relatively to the size of the body, is unusually large and villainously ugly. The rays of the back fin are long, and the foremost is provided with flaglike flap of skin at the top, extremely sensitive to touch, and playing an important part in the capture of its food.

SATIER

With the Hughes Family to Florida

Sandrews, Fla., Dec. 6, 1923.

Editor Antioch News:

I want to thank and at the same time congratulate you on your issue of Nov. The twenty year ago reminiscence was very much appreciated by wife as one of the looser in that. And the manner of it's start reminded me of the time J. J. Burput the powder in the big heating of what was then the office. The News, to clean out the long son of pipe leading to the chimney it cleaned it out all right, but I think there are those in Antioch today who remember the results both inside and outside of the office. I well remember when the said J. J. Burke, his first foot of type to print News from. And when I was in that office this fall the difference the equipment was very noticeable. It is about eighteen years ago that I received the last from Chetek, Wis., at Ashville, N. C., or Ga., on our first trip to him immediately and to hear from him again. He is still in the land we would be just as far from him now. I am a letter from him published today would be appreciated. The "Concrete" is very hard, not of the type generally used. In the south it is much more apt to be a rope with pall or bucket attached. Either drawn up by hand or a windlass. Here the water is obtained by driving down a screened point and attaching a pump to the top of the pipe. Less than two hours was the time to get a well in operation when we started here. And the water is softer than any cistern water in Illinois. Also it is warmer, and the deeper you go the warmer it gets. We also notice that several of our former Antioch friends have left there for different points in Florida. We hope to call on some of them before the winter is over. One thing that is very noticeable in the different issues of your paper is the names of the children and grand children, or even great grand children of people we once knew intimately, there. But not more so than the strange and foreign names that we never knew. "The world do move" is very apparent in so many ways. But probably no more than in the roads and means of transportation. Before the Civil War it was the rule for many to be born and die in the same spot. And is still so in many parts of the world perhaps. But the change of place is one of present day necessities, apparently. Go into any new town and see the people that will greet you from many states and foreign countries. I met a man the other day that told me his name was Parker, from Buffalo, N. Y. And he added "There are many of the same name here, but no relatives so far as I know. They are mixed up with the Irish, Dutch and the Devil."

Your Wilmette correspondent speaks of the 95th anniversary of Mr. W. W. Winchell's birthday. What a wealth of changes that man could relate since he was born. Antioch was then unknown. Chicago a mud hole and Darius B. Gages "cow path" not on judge of what you want to put in your paper, and if anything I write is not in your judgement up to your readers, I will be only glad to have
